MR BLAKE AND HOME RULE.

In the course of his speech at Guelph, a few evenings since the Hon. EDWARD BLAKE gave a resume of the incidents connected with the passage of the Home Rule resolutions in the Ottawa House of Commons last session. That gentleman stated that it was necessary to place the actual facts of the affair in their true light before the people. It did, indeed, seem strange, observes the Montreal Herald, and a fact humiliating, on the face of things that a motion almost in the words of the resolution adopted by the Commons in a previous session should meet with such determined opposition from the Government side of the House. The people of Canada had, through their Parliament, expressed sympathy with Home Rule in Ireland; they did so when it was not so burning a question as in 1886. They had thus taken a position entirely in harmony with Canadian ideas of self government, a position which they could maintain in the face of the world. MR. GLADSTONE having committed himself and the Government of England thoroughly to the principle, it was but reasonable that the Parliament of Canada should reaffirm its former resolution and extend, at a critical moment in the discussion of the question in England, its moral support to the movement then in progress. How the Government succeeded in "burking" MR. Blake's robust resolution, how they substituted for it something less effective, how they labored to prevent their own resolution being placed in the proper hands in England, may be learned from a perusal of MR. BLAKE'S sprightly speech. It is safe to say that the Premier played into the hands of the opponents of Home Rule as far as he dared when one of his supports and an enemy of Home Rule stated in Parliament that "he did not like any of these motions or amendments but he would vote for MR. COSTIGAN'S amendment because it would do the least harm," that is to say, that it would be of the least service to those in England who were gallantly fighting the battle of Home Rule. MR. BLAKE has brought out all the points of that political tournament in a popular way, and his speech in this connection makes interesting reading. It is there clearly shown how far a Candian Premier is prepared to go to place his freedom-loving country in a position of non-sympathy with those in the mother country who are asking less for Ireland in the way of self-government than Canadians have enjoyed these many years.

A RECENT British Parliamentary paper shows that in the Belfast riots several of the constabulary were killed, while 301 cases of injury among constabulary officers and men were reported. This disposes of the statement circulated in certain quarters that the officers behaved in a cowardly manner, retiring to their barracks, and firing on the crowd without justification. The police, as was shown at the Royal Commission meeting, were not only stoned for over an hour before their retirement, but they had to combat the lowest classes in the population of the city, who were armed with revolvers.

NEW WESTMINSTER ASSIZE.

The Sentence Passed upon Prisoners—Twelve Years for Shooting.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 12.—The assize court was concluded to-day. Prisoners were sentenced as follows: Willie Dick, indecent assault, 18 months with hard labor; Ah Foon, stealing, two years in the penitentiary; Albert Shannon, stealing, six months; Pat O'Connor, obtaining goods under false pretenses, two years in the penitentiary; Martin Nelson, unlawful wounding, six months hard labor; J. J. McDonald, forgery, 5 years in the penitentiary; Stott, shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm, 12 years in the penitentiary. In sentencing the prisoner Stott, His Lordship commented severely on the practice of carrying and drawing pistols, and said an end must be put to it.

—At the lecture to-night by Willis Bond, an admittance of two bits will be charged at the door to defray expenses. Those who have the good of the cause at heart will be permitted to contribute as much more as they like.

From Ottawa it is reported that a commercial treaty with the Sandwich Islands is on the tapis. A commissioner has again been appointed to visit the West India Islands.

Montreal is enjoying the luxury of excellent sleighing and mild winter weather.

At the Toronto Assizes last week, Jos. Anderson, Charles Fry and James David, convicted of horse stealing, got ten years each in the penitentiary.

It is the intention of Prof. Goldwin Smith's friends and admirers to find him a constituency at the approaching election. West Toronto is talked of.

It is rumored in political circles that Hon. Mr. Ross will resign the premiership, and that Judge Angers will be called upon to form a cabinet. It is also stated that the Nationalists had promised to support Angers.

Sir John A. Macdonald arrived in Toronto last Thursday, and is occupying a suite of rooms at the Queen's Hotel. Several leading Conservatives are in town presumably arranging matters relative to the approaching general election.

Dr. McEachren, Chief Inspector of Quarantine, was recently in Ottawa, consulting Minister Carling's department after his return from the Northwest. It is probable that more stringent quarantine regulations regarding protection from pleuro-pneumonia will be adopted.

A dispatch from Toronto, relative to the premier's visit, says that the Globe has it that he is reconciling the kickers and providing funds for the campaign, which it editorially says Sir John has absolutely decided must come on immediately. A number of leading Conservatives called upon the premier yesterday, among them Patterson, of Essex, who, it is said, will be taken into the Cabinet.

POLITICS IN ENGLAND.

The Incurable Split in the Liberal Ranks Widening.

Irish Affairs and Meeting of the National League.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—More important issues are arising from the Leeds Conference of the National Liberal Federation than were anticipated. Although the programme which was adopted affirmed no new principle, the whole of the proceedings tended toward Radical supremacy over Moderate Liberalism. Mr. Morley, although he was unable to obtain Mr. Gladstone's assent to an explicit announcement in favor of the disestablishment of the English Church, succeeded in getting the principle affirmed, veiled under the phrase demanding religious equality in elections between the state and all forms of religious belief. The planks in the party platform, cumbered with a compromising adhesion to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill and a declaration against British intervention on the continent, have rendered the breach with the Moderate Liberals beyond the possibility of repair. If the secret design of Mr. Morley was to commit the conference to the assertion that, henceforth, the Radicals are the Liberal party, his object has been attained. Both sides now regard the split as incurable and, no further overtures toward conciliation have been discussed. Moderate Liberals accuse Harcourt and Morley of guiding the policy of the Gladstonians with a view of the seizure of the Liberal leadership, and to keeping Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain in a position of lasting secession. The Whigs are not backward about accepting a challenge of hostility to the bitter end. The Radical Unionists, however, feel this excommunication keenly and still hope that they will effect a union without having to make an absolute surrender on the question of Home Rule. Several of Mr. Chamberlain's followers have been sounding Mr. Schnadhorst, the Gladstonian agent, as to the terms upon which Mr. Chamberlain would be permitted to return to his allegiance to Mr. Gladstone.

IN IRELAND.

The peaceful condition of Ireland enables the Government to postpone the calling of Parliament until February 8th. Earl Cowper has informed Sir Michael Hicks-Beach that the preliminary report of the royal commission of inquiry into the land question will be ready in January for use in supplying data for the land bill to be produced at an early period in the session. General Redvers Buller's anti eviction circular has aroused the great Unionist press, which characterized the document as a distinct revolution against the statute laws. The circular directs that police sergeants shall supply General Buller with information showing the condition of tenants who are threatened with eviction, and says that if the contemplated evictions are unreasonable or unjust he (Buller) will refuse to enforce them. General Buller has already refused assistance in several instances, and the landlords interested threaten to bring action against him for refusing to execute the judgments of the courts. General Buller is fortified in his line of conduct by the instructions of the Government, and continues his course of refusing to aid landlords in evicting tenants, but his action is illegal beyond a doubt, and will cause a furious storm in Parliament as soon as that body resumes its labors. According to

THE LATEST ABSURD RUMOR.

Russia is supplying the London Socialists with funds to continue their agitation in order to keep England too busy with internal troubles to hold up her dignity abroad. The English feeling toward Russia is one of intense hatred, which is increasing day by day, and there is a desire to chastise her if only England dared. John Bright expresses his belief that Russia is acting in a perfectly open manner and means well, and the newspapers tell Mr. Bright he ought to go to school and learn something. The British public feeling is getting tired of the government's inactive foreign policy. The people want to see something done. Only a year ago he denounced Russia as a burglar among nations, while now he is indifferent to her extinguishment of the smaller peoples, to say nothing of her steady absorption of the territory which hitherto separated her from India. Churchill receives notice of the same kind. Salisbury and Churchill are asked why they are so calm now, when Russia is doing absolutely as the chooses in the East. If England does not adopt a vigorous attitude and if Austria continues her policy of fear, matters will soon have shaped themselves that the Russian Bear will easily take the last step which separates him from long desired Constantinople.

NATIONAL LEAGUE CONVENTION.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 7.—At the Irish meeting to-day the resolutions adopted yesterday were confirmed. Mr. O'Connor said the Irish battle was begun seven centuries ago, and before seven years more had passed they would be completely successful. Mr. O'Connor said it was supposed that Ireland was quiet because the people were in a state of abject despair. They would always be quiet when governed in accordance with Irish ideas. The Tories had rejected Mr. Gladstone's bill but were carrying out Mr. Parnell's bill and the law of the National League. That was why the country was quiet. The Tories had found the Irish people too strong for them.

DUBLIN, Nov. 7.—At a large meeting at Skibbere, Messrs. O'Shea, Farmer, and Kenny, members of the House of Commons, advocated the United Ireland programme. Speaking at Castlebar, Mr. Deasy, M. P., compared Miss Gardner, who some time ago caused a wholesale eviction of her tenants, to a woman possessed of a demon who, when she died, went to h—l, but was kicked out again. He said that if Home Rule was adopted the release of political prisoners and the departure of the landlords would be sure to follow.

CANADIAN TIMBER THIEVES.

HELENA, Nov. 8.—Imperial Agent Crawford, who was sent to the Belly River country in northern Montana to examine into the alleged depredations made by Canadian timber men, has made his report. He found about 10,000 logs lying out there, and that the Canadians have been floating it down the Belly River to the bridge where it was cut into building timber and distributed throughout the Canadian Northwest.

Medals will shortly be presented to the mounted police actually under fire during the Northwest Rebellion.

A CRISIS AT LAST.

Dr. Ross Reported to be About to Resign—The Probabilities as to His Successor.

The Montreal Herald of the 4th states that it is quite evident that matters have come to a crisis in this province. Dr. Ross is now convinced that he has been beaten at the polls and that when the Legislature meets he will be the leader (if a leader at all) of a minority of the members of the Assembly. We have private information on which we can rely with perfect confidence that Dr. Ross will not attempt to carry on the government of the province, knowing that a majority of the people's representatives are opposed to his administration. He has determined to resign; indeed it is more than probable that his resignation is already in the hands of the Lieut.-Governor. This determination of the premier has carried consternation into the camp of the placemen and contractors, who evidently believe that the Government of Quebec exists solely for their special use and benefit. They cannot bring themselves to surrender the profits, powers and privileges which they have so long enjoyed, without another struggle. Mr. Mercier is their bete noir and they are determined that he shall not be the leader of the next Government. They have been eagerly looking for some one who will undertake the task of forming a new Government when Dr. Ross resigns. Judge Angers was first solicited to attempt to form a Conservative or a Coalition Ministry, but the applicants received from him a firm and definite refusal. Then application was made to leading Liberals. It was "anything to beat "the Castors,—anything to beat Mercier!" Mr. Shehyn was approached, but that tried man and true was too loyal to his leader and to constitutional usage to listen to any such proposition. Senator Pelletier, another Liberal, was next approached, but this gentleman knew too well what was due to the man who had so gallantly fought the battles of his party to think of taking the place, which was his by right. Other leading Liberals were sounded but their loyalty to the constitution and to Mr. Mercier could not be shaken. The premiership, which was thus in a sense going a begging, was at last offered to Judge Mathieu, who has neither accepted nor refused the position. The learned judge, it appears, hesitates to come to the rescue of the hungry horde who are acting as if they and not the people of Quebec had the selection of the men who shall govern the province. We cannot think that the Lieut.-Governor has had anything to do with these intrigues. He knows his duty as a constitutional ruler too well to think of calling any one else than the acknowledged leader of the opposition to form a new administration, and would probably be the last man to think of going outside of the Legislature to seek a premier.

A DIVORCE SCANDAL.

Lord Aylmer's Shocking Brutality to his Wife, who is an American.

A London despatch of the 5th instant announces that the evidence in the divorce case of Lady Aylmer against her husband, Sir Arthur Aylmer, proved that Aylmer had treated his wife brutally from the day after their marriage in 1884; that he had beaten her repeatedly and that he invariably repaid her forgiveness of such treatment with the blackest ingratitude. After one of his customary orgies it was shown that Aylmer became seriously ill and was tenderly nursed by his wife until he recovered. Two days after he was able to leave his bed he actually brought a prostitute into his wife's house in the middle of the day, and insisted upon her remaining there as long as she choose to stay. Upon cross examination Lady Aylmer admitted that Aylmer had married her believing she was a widow, although her first husband, who had obtained a divorce from her in Chicago, was living, but declared that the statements contained in the petition for such divorce, together with the evidence her husband gave in support of it, were false. Mrs. Nancy Reid, Lady Aylmer's mother, who lives in New York, testified that Aylmer had confessed to her his numerous acts of adultery and had admitted that he could not recall a time since his marriage to Lady Aylmer when he had not faithfully kept his marriage vows. Lady Aylmer's attorneys are enraged at the course pursued by Aylmer's lawyers in prostituting themselves to the venomous feelings of the client by seeking to prevent the facts that Lady Aylmer's first divorce was absolute and undeniable; that her husband was petitioner in the case on the ground of desertion, and that the petition misrepresented the actual facts which were of a character not desirable to disclose. These facts were, however, presented to the court with the result that the perversions of Aylmer were dismissed and a degree granted in favor of her ladyship.

LATE RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

A Winnipeg paper gives the following particulars of recent accidents in the Selkirks, which have only barely been mentioned by Victoria papers as yet: Saturday evening's express brought from the mountains the remains of Hector D. McFadden, a railway employee, who met with a terrible death at Donald, B. C., on Wednesday evening. He was "walking boss" for Mr. Mackenzie and was out on the main line as the train was coming along. To get out of its way he stepped off it on to a switch, not noticing that an engine was coming down the switch in the opposite direction. He was struck with fearful force. The foot of his right leg was almost severed, and the leg itself was cut off at the thigh. There was also a bad gash across the forehead. Notwithstanding these terrible injuries he lived and was conscious for two hours. There his remains which were brought down in a rough box were transferred to a casket and sent east to his home in Kirkfield, a village in North Victoria, Ont. He was a young man about thirty. What makes the accident a peculiarly sad one, was that only the day before he was killed, a brother of his left Donald for his home in Kirkfield with both his legs broken at the ankles—the result of another accident—in charge of another of his brothers.

Accidents have been plentiful at the Selkirks through the past season. A week or so ago a young man named Campbell was killed while unloading a car of timber. He cut out the pieces at the end of the car, and the remaining logs suddenly rolled out crushing him to death. Extraordinary to say, he too was from the same place as the McFaddens—Kirkfield. This little village thus supplied three victims within a few days.

At a meeting of the Ottawa clergymen resolutions were passed disapproving of Sunday traffic on railways.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

EUROPEAN, BY CABLE.

A TIDAL WAVE

At Nice, Italy, Destroys the Quays and Promenades—Serious Damage Throughout the Country.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The city of Nice in Italy has been visited by enormous waves from the Mediterranean which swept away the quays and promenades on the Anglais plantation. Upwards of a hundred people were carried off their feet, and the quays and promenades were covered with sand. The devastation wrought by the waves extends two miles along Nice's water front. The water at Lannes, which is 25 miles from Nice, has been subject to a fierce storm and two vessels are known to be wrecked. Men standing on the quays were carried out to sea on immense waves. The Croisset promenade was destroyed. A rain amounting to almost a deluge, has been falling for four days. At Gap, the capital of the department of Kantes in the Alps, a number of houses have been utterly destroyed by the floods resulting from the rain fall. The City of Ain is so badly flooded that travel in the street is impossible, except in boats. In Nimes, two parishes are under water and a third is isolated by floods.

A BLOOD-THIRSTY GENERAL.

BOMBAY, Nov. 12.—The Ghilzais tribe in rebellion in Afghanistan have been attacked by the Afghan general sent to subdue them and were badly defeated. The general sent to Cabul ten car-loads of the remains of rebels killed in the battle as a token of victory that his forces had won.

TROUBLE IN SPAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Information has been received here that much alarm exists in Madrid in consequence of reports of a threatened outbreak against the government, and that extensive military precautions are being taken. The news from Castille shows that a bad state of feeling prevails among the people there, and a rising is feared in Cardiz. An incident has occurred which also leads the government to believe that trouble is imminent in the provinces.

CABLE GOSSIP.

The Gazette says that King George of Greece will leave Athens if his brother, Prince Waldemar, accepts the Bulgarian throne.

Reliable advices from Vienna say that the Czar declines to accept the election of Prince Waldemar, but will not oppose Prince Nicholas of Mingrella.

A brutal championship prize fight for £100 a side took place on Thursday at Hartington, Middlesex. It is reported one of the combatants was killed.

An extensive conflagration broke out in the Birmingham gas works on Thursday evening, by which 5000 tons of coke were consumed. A panic broke out in the neighborhood. The firemen were unable to cope with the fire.

M. Paul Bert, French Minister, resident at Annam is dead.

The Bulgarian deputation appointed to convey to Prince Waldemar the official notice of his election by the Sobranje to succeed Prince Alexander, have departed for Cannes, France, where the prince is sojourning.

Baron Mohrenheim is about to return to Paris to resume his duties as Russian Ambassador to France. On his way to France he will stop at Cannes in order to have a conference with Prince Waldemar. Prince Nicholas, of Mingrella, who is favored by the Czar as a candidate for the Bulgarian throne, is a Russian subject and a member of the orthodox Greek church. He is said to be willing to accept the post of Bulgarian ruler.

In German political circles it is considered certain that Prince Waldemar will decline the post of Bulgarian ruler. Prince Bismarck is inclined to favor the Prince of Mingrella as a candidate for the throne of Bulgaria. Prince Nicholas has an especially good society reputation in Berlin as well as in St. Petersburg.

Emperor William on Thursday received Prince Louis Bavaria and afterwards had a conference with Prince Bismarck.

THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Gladstone in a brief telegram to the Bulgarian deputies says: "My opinions and desires concerning the Ottoman Empire have always been the same. Their liberties were obtained for them by the Sultan for their use and benefit and it is not proper they should be handed over in whole or in part to anybody else. It was a noble act of the late Czar to obtain freedom for Bulgaria, but if it is to fall into Servian hands, the nobleness of the action disappears. I cling to the hope that the present Czar will be faithful to the traditions which earned such gratitude for his lamented predecessor. I have never thought it my duty to raise my voice on the present occasion, because I believe there is no difference of opinion in England on the subject, and no reason to doubt that the sentiment of the nation will be fully represented on the continent of Europe by Lord Iddesleigh.

SERGEANT FLEWIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—According to an item in the papers, it appears to be the intention of the council to reinstate Sergeant Flewin in his former position on the police force. This is a subject the press may not care to ventilate, as by so doing it might be thought to have the appearance of personal persecution. But the public journalist has a duty to perform, and if you will pardon me for pointing it out, this is a case that clearly comes within the scope of newspaper criticism. In view of all the circumstances connected with the deplorable case of Russell vs. Russell, and restoration of one of the parties to a position of trust and guardianship of the public peace and morals, would be an insult to the people of Victoria. Is the public to understand by your silence, Mr. Editor, that you are prepared to condone the offence?

CITIZEN.

[NOTE—We are not aware what course the council intends to pursue. It has been stated, and we believe correctly, that a petition containing nearly 400 names, has been presented to the council asking for the retention of Sergeant Flewin in office. Notwithstanding the influential character of this petition, we are inclined to think that it will be quietly ignored. As our correspondent insinuates, we are not inclined to discuss the question, but it is because we have no reason to know that the council entertain the idea suggested.]

AMERICAN HAPPENINGS.

CAMERON-LONSDALE.

The Scion of English Aristocracy Proved to be a Failure as a Theatrical Manager, "Don't You Know."

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Violet Cameron and Lord Lonsdale Opera troupe have decided to abandon their proposed tour of the principal cities in this country. Their engagement at the Casino opera house closes next Monday night. They will then appear in Brooklyn for a few weeks after which the entire company will sail for Liverpool. Unpleasant notoriety has been gained by the star and her lordly manager, and caused a number of out-of-town managers to cancel their dates with the company at their opera houses. This, taken with the fact that their engagement at the Casino has been a financial and artistic failure, decided the English lord to take his troupe home again.

"BALD KNOBBERS."

A Mob of Probable Prohibitionists Enter a Missouri Town to Turn the Whiskey Loose—A Fight Ensues in Consequence.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12.—A special dispatch from Chadwick, Missouri, says that about 100 "bald knobbers" entered that town at 1 o'clock yesterday morning and began a raid on the saloons, their object being to open all whiskey barrels and pour the whiskey out, but while they were at this work the citizens of the town opened fire on them, when the shooting became general. More than 100 shots were exchanged which resulted in a stampede of the "bald knobbers." It was ascertained that only one man was seriously wounded and he was a member of the "bald knobbers'" gang. His companions carried him away with them in the darkness. The affair has caused much excitement.

SUCCESSFUL NEGOTIATIONS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Manitoba Railway has negotiated with a New York syndicate composed of Kuhn, Leebe & Co., Brown Bros. & Co., and J. K. Kennedy, Todd & Co., for the sale of $5,100,000 consolidated bonds maturing in 1933 and bearing 4½ per cent interest.

SNOW STORM.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—There is a heavy snow storm prevailing throughout Ohio which interferes with telegraphic communication with the east.

IN FAVOR OF BONUSES.

DENVER, Nov. 12.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade here last night, that body adopted a resolution endorsing the proposition submitted by the Pacific Mutual Telegraph Company asking the citizens of Denver to subscribe $50,000 stock in the Co. The money will be used in building the line from Kansas City. The Board pledged themselves to do everything that reasonably comes within its province towards making the enterprise a success.

A $180,000 EMBEZZLER.

Arrest in Montreal of a Chicago Defaulter on a Large Scale.

A special from Montreal states that another "skipper" from Uncle Sam's dominions was arrested here this morning for embezzling $180,000 of the funds of the Merchants' National Bank of Peoria, Ill. The culprit's name is John F. Hoke, and he held the position of ledger keeper. The story of the crime is as follows: In May, 1886, it is stated John F. Hoke disappeared from Peoria. On the day he left a shortage of $5,000 was discovered in the bank account. Examiners were immediately put to work on the books, and inside of ten days it was known that no less than $180,000 of the bank's $200,000 capital had disappeared with Hoke, who, having made almost a clean sweep went to Niagara Falls. He is said to have made over to the bank all his real estate, amounting to $30,000 but the bank people are looking after something more, and believe his wife has the boodle, though Hoke says he lost nearly all of it in wheat speculations.

BOARD OF TRADE.

On Wednesday afternoon there was an important meeting of the Board of Trade held in the rooms of the Board, Bank of British Columbia building, at which a large attendance of members were present. The president, J. H. Todd, Esq., occupied the chair. Dr. Helmcken was present and entered into an elaborate explanation relative to the extension of the Island Railway northward. The doctor submitted maps and data relative to the scheme and its advantage not only to Victoria and the Island but also to the province and the Dominion. A committee consisting of Messrs. R. Finlayson, J. S. Yates, W. F. Bullen, J. H. Turner, M. T. Johnston, R. T. Williams, Thos. Earle, and A. Oliver with the president as an ex-officio member to consider the subject and report at a subsequent meeting.

The matter of transportation charges on the Canadian Pacific was discussed. The following were appointed a committee on the matter Messrs. F. Barnard, E. C. Neufelder and W. F. Bullen, with the President. They will report at next meeting of the Board.

The general board, by the council, directed attention to the anomalous position which this city occupied in the matter of telegraphy. Since the 1st of October the entire system in this province has been under the control of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Parties carrying on correspondence by telegraph relative to transportation rates are apprehensive that the contents of their messages may become known to the officials of that company. It is believed that the deliberations of the Board will result in the construction of an independent line to connect with the system of the Western Union Company in Washington Territory.

The meeting was very unanimous in its views on the topics discussed.

MARINE ITEMS.

The C. P. N. Co.'s steamer Maude has been repainted and has received a new fore-foot and her bottom scraped.

The steamer Ancon has arrived at San Francisco and will go on the Merchants' dry-dock for repairs.

A GENERAL ELECTION.

That a general Dominion election will take place before the next session of parliament is a generally admitted fact. Notwithstanding the fact that the government has a solid working majority of at least sixty members in a full house, and that the present parliament will not expire until next July, the conclusion appears to have been arrived at by the Cabinet to make an appeal to the people at once. For the next three months the roads in the rural districts in the east will afford good sleighing, making it possible for people to move about; so that a full vote will certainly be recorded. The Ontario general elections will take place ere "the ground shall hear the voice of spring and flourish green again." Manitoba will record its vote either for or against Mr. NORQUAY's government next month, it is believed. Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD's visit to Toronto, and the number of prominent Conservative representative men who have visited him there, as well as the increased activity in the ranks of both Conservative and Liberal are regarded unmistakeably omens that the country is on the verge of a great political conflict. In many quarters it appears to be incomprehensible why such an appeal, at this particular juncture should be made. It is claimed by the friends of the government that in the maritime provinces a better feeling towards the Federal government prevails there now than a few months ago. In Quebec a reaction is said to have set in, favoring the Ottawa government, rendering it possible that the Rouge contingent from that province will not be so large as many supposed it would be a few weeks ago. Ontario will be the battle ground and the pivot on which the contest is bound to turn. Party lines are considerably mixed in that province, rendering it difficult to predict which party will secure the ultimate ascendancy. The "No Popery" howl of the Mail and other Conservative journals, as well as the crusade inaugurated by the Mail against the liquor traffic, has alienated great numbers from their party fealty in the Conservative ranks. It is claimed by the extreme protestant wing of the ministerial party that a larger protestant vote than every will be recorded for the nominees of the Ottawa government, and that instead of their ranks being thinned they will be augmented. The proselytizing influence of the Mail will then become apparent. In the other provinces there will be no material change. Should the Liberals succeed in converting a Conservative majority of over seventy into a minority vote, by an overshadowing Liberal majority, it will indeed be a wonderful change in the political opinion of the people of the Dominion. A few weeks now will tell whether the predictions of the opposition or those of the government have been based on reliable information. One thing, however, is certain; it is that neither party will have so large a majority as they have had since the famous sweep of 1874.

In connection with the dissolution the Globe of the 5th inst. says:

"We have information, the truthworthiness of which cannot be questioned, and it is to the effect that Sir John Macdonald has absolutely decided that the general elections must come on immediately. Decision to this effect was come to at the last meeting of the Cabinet. As it was in 1882 so he has decided it shall be now, and the growlings of those Tory members whose guilty consciences force them to fear their constituents will be disregarded. The meeting of the Tory party now being held in this city is evidently for the purpose of raising and deciding upon the allotment of funds. Let it be so. The campaign will be short and sharp, and the result will be decisive. There are many constituencies in which the Liberal nominations have not been made. A far greater number of seats are without Liberal candidates than are without Conservatives—for the reason that the Conservatives hold a large majority of the seats. Not a moment should be lost in filling up the ranks. Conventions should be called and nominations made immediately, and by this day two weeks not a single constitituency in the wide Dominion should be without its Liberal candidate."

THE latest about the political situation in Quebec is that the Tories are now in favor of the immediate resignation of the Ross government, with the understanding that a Conservative of the Castor faction be called upon to form a new government. Hon. Mr. DEBOUCHERVILLE, and Hon. Mr. CHAUVEAU are mentioned as premiers of this administration, which it is claimed would rally the Conservatives of all shades.

BRITISH FIGHTING POWER.

The war clouds hovering over Europe for a long time, according to the most recent cable advices, are fast closing in, and an outburst at any moment may be expected. Hitherto France has been friendly with Great Britain, but recently has adopted an unfriendly tone, and seems disposed to make the British occupation of Egypt a casusbelli. It would be the irony of fate if such were to be the case, as Great Britain was reluctantly compelled to interfere in Egyptian affairs, and has ever since endeavored to withdraw, honorably, from her very difficult and disagreeable position. At the time of Great Britain's interference, the control of the Suez Canal was a vithl necessity to her. Now, owing to the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, she has an alternative route entirely through British territory, and the Suez Canal becomes of secondary importance. The difficulty is, however, to withdraw from Egypt without loss of prestige. This Great Britain is apparently not only willing but anxious to do, but certainly cannot, and will not, do under pressure from France. It is evident that Russia, as her possible ally in the future, is instigating the unfriendly feeling of France. The military power of Great Britain, owing to her insular position, and the security from invasion afforded by a very powerful navy, is very much less than her continental neighbors. In round numbers her available armed strength is as follows:

Regular Army	100,000
Army reserve	60,000
Militia	130,000
Militia reserve	20,000
Yeomanry	12,000
Volunteers	200,000
	512,000
Indian native army	78,000

Of this number, 60,000 of the regular army, and the Indian native army, is in India, and but a small part, if any, could be spared to take part in any European war. This reduces the available regular force to 130,000 of all arms, 30,000 of whom are in Ireland and 20,000 in garrisons all over the world. Thus the regular strength which could be spared for foreign warfare, including the army reserve, would be less than 150,000. Add to this number, 20,000 drawn from the Mediterranean and India, if Egypt were to be the theatre of war, and in case of extreme emergency, 30,000 volunteers from the militia, and we have a strength of 200,000 all told. In contrast with this force the mobilized strength of the great continental powers, on a war footing, number as follows:

France	700,000
Russia	678,000
Austria	540,000
Germany	495,000
Italy	350,000

With such disparity of strength we may safely anticipate that a declaration of war will be followed by an immediate expansion of Great Britan's war strength, in which her colonies would be invited to take a part, or by the formation of alliances with other European powers. Present indications point to Austria and Italy as possible allies, Germany and Turkey standing neutral, and this would give the combatants the following strength:

France and Russia	1,375,000
Great Britain, Austria and Italy	1,095,000

The disparity in the numerical strength of the armies is apparently as great in the relative strength of the respective navies, as follows:

	Vessels.	Seamen.
Great Britain	273	58,000
Austria	47	13,000
Italy	80	19,000
	400	90,000
France	258	42,000
Russia (Balkan and Black Sea Fleets)	186	60,000
	444	102,000

But in the matter of tonnage and weight of guns the navies of Great Britain and Italy are more than a match for the combined navies of the world. It is still a question of how far iron-clad fleets constitute real strength, as guns and projectiles capable of piercing the heaviest armor have been constructed in France, but as the navies of both powers would be subjected to the same test, it is probable that the relative strength would be maintained. With such powers engaged in the theatre of war, the contest would be terrific and probably short-lived. Of the ultimate result, we have everything to hope and nothing to fear.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSION.

The Railway Commission appointed under the MCCARTHY Act has been holding sessions in the eastern cities. There is a diversity of opinion as to whether there is the necessity of such a body and the steps which led to its creation. There is no doubt that a number of the shippers gave their evidence under fear of the railway companies, who can raise or lower the freights on them just as they please. Were these shippers to speak their mind on the subject they might very soon find themselves punished for their honest expression of opinion by having their freight rates raised on them. Writing on the subject the Toronto Telegram says that it is as clear as anything need be that the evidence taken by the royal commission on railways should have been taken in private. There is a general apprehension that the work of the commission will end in smoke and that the whole investigation made by it will turn out to be a farce. All this is disheartening, particularly when it has been shown even by some who gave evidence under difficulties that a railway commission is an absolute necessity to the country. It is absurd to suppose that the gentlemen who are looking for evidence for and against the appointment of a railway commission should expect to give their testimony publicly when they have so much at stake and when their interests are immediately involved. Shippers will not speak out their minds freely in presence of those from whom they have received favors, are receiving favors, or expect to receive favors, in the matter of freights. They do not wish to give an excuse for having the screws put on in future transactions. The prisoner who, when asked by CROMWELL's soldiers what religion he professed, replied that he professed the same religion as that gentleman there with the axe, knew what he was about, and evinced a proper appreciation of the surroundings.

FORCED APART.

BY W. CLARK RUSSELL.

Author of the "Wreck of the Grosvenor," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," &c.

"[illegible] for you to do," said she, resuming her chair and twisting her scant gray tresses into a knot at the back of her head. "Doth your cousin, Mrs. Lloyd, know you are coming to her?"

"No," Jenny answered. "I did not make up my mind to leave home till father told me to get ready to quit for London with him in the morning. I should fear to be with him if we could not find the church. If he does not think me truthful then I am a sinner to him, and not fit for his house; and that is why I am leaving him forever!"

Her eyes flashed as she spoke, and the hard look of her mouth might have reminded Mrs. Mead of the deacon at his sternest. But the anger melted away, and she cried piteously, "You will tell my poor mother that you have seen me, and why I have left her? Father's harshness to me is breaking her heart, and what will she do when she finds her pretty one gone?" and she paused again to battle with her tears.

"Miss Jenny, if ye are wise, ye'll go home," said Mrs. Mead, nodding her head. "Why, what'll folks say when it's known you've run away! Sure enough they'll call ye a guilty wench, and you would not like that."

"They will call me that if I stay—why should they not, if father thinks it!—and never could I go into the street, nor meet human eyes, with this shame upon me!" she cried, despairingly.

"It's hard to know! it's hard to know!" groaned the old woman. "Would ye wish your mother to hear where you are?"

"No!" she answered quickly. "So that I am living and with friends, as you must tell her, Mrs. Mead, she will not despair. But no one must be told where I am—not one, Mrs. Mead. Promise me that! Swear it!"

"I'll swear it if you please, Mrs. Jenny," replied Mrs. Mead, sympathetically giving the girl her wifely prefix. "But before ye make me take an oath just think awhile. If I swear, they may drown me and not get the truth. Suppose Mr. Cuthbert——"

"Ah!" exclaimed the girl, with a short, passionate cry, "if he should come—why, why, Mrs. Mead, you would tell him instantly; he would be eager and mad to find me, and I to be with him. O, heavenly Lord! if thou wouldst but give him to me now!" she cried, raising her clasped hands, while her voice died away into a soft, exquisitely musical plaintive note.

"I don't like this business—truly I would rather have no hand in it," said Mrs. Mead, slowly turning her face from side to side. "Thy father would come and burn my house down if he knew I had helped you to leave the town."

"You need not help me, I will go away now, Mrs. Mead, and leave you to your rest."

"That you shall not," cried the old woman, jumping up and laying her skinny hand on Jenny, who had risen. "Sit down, sit down, my pretty. Why, how long will it take ye to walk to Winston? Two hours, will it? And so you shall come to the village at three o' the morn, and have five hours to count the daisies in afore th' coach comes! Sit down! sit down! Ye'll not leave this house yet a bit, I'se warrant."

"But I will be on my way before the light comes and the people are up," answered Jenny, still standing.

"So ye shall, but not afore the light comes. Sit, mistress. Lord save your heart, 'tis easier nor standing, and I for one niver can think on my feet. Neighbors like bed for thinkin', say I, and think you're flat. Ye'll be changing your mind, I doubt, if ye'll sit and ponder."

"Do not say that, Mrs. Mead. I have already left home, and it is as bad as if I were a thousand miles off. I will not go back, indeed. Bid me good-night, and be sure my heart is warm to thee for thy kindness."

"Ah!" cried Mrs. Mead, forcing her, but not unterderly, into her chair, "ye come from an obstinate father, and argiments, as I've always said, is wasted on sitch. If ye mean to go, I'll not stop you—and who should know best but you? But the job needn't be worse nor it is. I'm one," said she, going to her cupboard, "as loves crature comforts. Crature comforts," she continued, producing a couple of cups and saucers, a loaf of bread, some eggs, and a strange looking vessel of tin in which was some tea; made precious by the price of it in those days, "is a true voice of consolation to the afflicted, to my way o' thinking. Niver did I attend a buryin' or go a nursin', or help to lay a body out, but first I laid in a meal o' food. Niver doth the mind do duty on an empty stomach. If it's but a crust o' hard bread and a spoonful o' gin, let me have it, I says, before I go to work. There's no sperrit in fasting."

And so she rattled on, in a subdued voice for fear of disturbing the tailor and his wife overhead, all the while kindling a fire, and preparing the table, and ceasing her gabble only to go and draw a kettle of water from some back place.

There was a dispatch in the old woman's method of going to work, and a quiet, too, were it not for the subdued, eternal cackle of her tongue, that would have made a sick man love her. She produced another candle and brightened up the room, and presently the kettle was blowing out its filament of steam.

"Now, mistress," said she, "here be a dish of tea which all Chaney, where the herb grows, as I've heard, couldn't match. Just a shred of bread, with this fine new butter, I give that egg a relish as ye'll niver cease to remember. Come, come! sin' we mun both keep awake, there's naught like tea—or tay, as my mother used to call it; and that's the right word, though in these queer times a lady hath no liberty. Well, will ye not laugh over this feast some day? I reckon Mr. Shaw'll make ye see a joke in it, for I niver knew a blue eye like his that didn't mean a merry heart; and this will I say of your husband, mistress, that since the day when poor Will Hacket coorted me i' silk stockings, I've niver seen a prettier lad than Mr. Cuthbert Shaw. Crack the egg, my dear, an' if ye shall tell the inside of it from cream, I'll swallow the shell. It's middling late for supper, but as thy father once said to me fifteen years ago, when I loved a bit o' riband as has no relish now, we're all artificial creatures—which is the Lord's truth. Why shouldn't a body eat i' the middle o' the night as well as the morn? Come, come, make a beginning, or I'll not go along wi' ye."

"But I do not want you to come along with me, Mrs. Mead. Indeed, I should not allow you to leave your house after keeping you from your bed—no, truly, though I love you dearly for your kindness," exclaimed Jenny.

"Do you think I should let a pretty young woman walk along to Winston at this time o' morn, with her box and her sweet face to court ivery smock she may come across?" cried Mrs. Mead, poising a saucer on a level with her nose, and straining her eyes at Jenny over it. "What is a summer's morning walk to me? If I can't hinder thee from leaving home, I'll see thee safe in t' coach anyways, and that'll be something for me to tell thy mother."

The need of companionship was strong in Jenny. All the way to Winston, with a long waiting for the coach, was a weary undertaking, and what society should she have but bitter thoughts? Besides, a little touch of comfort there was in the feeling that her mother would know that no harm had befallen her, if Mrs. Mead gave the story so far as her promise of secrecy permitted. But there was that in the old woman's face which helped Jenny to prompter acceptance of the offer than otherwise her sweetness would have sanctioned. Mrs. Mead was clearly determined, and ready to quarrel, that her will should have its way. So the lonely hearted girl, with the saddest smile on her white face, went up to the dame and thanked her with a kiss upon the ripples of her forehead; and had she been a map, a favor more delightful the old woman could not have made it seem. But oh, what a contrast when the faces were together!

Now slowly, as they sat in these small hours—outside, the solemn stillness of the night, and within, no sound but the humming of the kettle to thread the melodious complaining notes of the girl and the creaking tones of her sympathetic listener—the faint and mystical light of the new day, creeping from the infinite abysm into the towering chambers of the western heavens, stood palely on the window glass, and little twitter of birds broke abruptly from invisible places.

Until the light had broadened, Mrs. Mead refused to heed it, and Jenny, with her back to the window, and telling the long story of her love and marriage and sorrow to her companion, did not see it. Then the girl, pausing with feverish eyes, after words of bitter wonder that Cuthbert should have left her, and a wild cry that he might not be dead, Mrs. Mead held up her finger.

"Mistress," said she, "before it is too late think well of what you are about to do. Hush! If ye were my own child I should not say more to thee."

"I have thought! I have thought!" moaned Jenny, rocking herself to and fro. "My cousin Bridget will give me a home; and she and her husband only shall know my story. But what will the talk be here, whether I stay or go? Never could I sit abroad, and at home my father could not bear to see me. Should God send my husband back then father will hang his head to think of the wrong he has done his girl. And the shalt tell mother where I am. But, no Cuthbert comes, I will keep hidden. I have sworn it to myself; and if I should be forced to stay here I would kill myself—indeed would!"

"Well, truly!" muttered the old woman. "To see your beauty, like a kitten's, and sweet smiles as ye greet with, who'd think ye had so much spirit! I don't say ye aren't right. You're taching some folks a lesson as'll profit 'em; and when you're righted, the people here'll make a queen of ye—see, now! Doth not the Lord say, 'It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs?' Yet his own child's bread hath your father taken, and niver are dogs wanting when there is a crust to gnaw. Turn your head now, my pretty. Do ye see it's day?"

With a sharp glance at the window, Jenny jumped from her chair.

"I must go quickly," she cried. "There will be people abroad, and if I am seen they will run to father."

"There'll be no one abroad for another hour yet—not even the market folk," replied Mrs. Mead. "But I'll not keep ye scared."

She fetched her shawl and bonnet from the bedroom, and while she put them on she said:

"There's Sallie Walker, as kapes the Greyhound at Winston. I nursed her mother, and was at her funeral; and niver doth Sal come to Greystone without droppin' in to see if Mother Mead be still alive. We'll have her up, mistress, though she be snoring, and she shall give thee a couch for two hours' rest. For d'ye think you're made o' wire and parchment like me, that you can set through a whole night without a nap? Ah! setto there'll be summat to break thy fast wi', I'se warrant—if I kill one o' Sally's pigs myself for the daintiness o' chitterlings. Then into the coach ye'll get, and may the Lord send ye happiness!"

So saying, she laid hold of Jenny's box and with muffled tread and without speech they both of them went into the gray morning light.

(To be Continued.)

The Little Girl of To-Day.

A handsome, well-formed girl of 12 years who is elaborately dressed three or four times a day, whose only chaperon seems to be her maid, who walks the verandas of a large hotel with the savoir faire of the woman of the world, who sees her bed usually at 12 o'clock, who donates her stocking as a souvenir to her boy lovers, and who, with more self-possession than sweetness, is quite capable of asking for the best place in the dance or at the table, can not, will not grow into the sort of woman that one would want boys to marry; and yet this is the typical small girl. I quite believe that she comes usually of the nouveau riche, for people who are really good form do not cast their children upon the dangerous waters of public parlors in large hotels. Good, strong, hearty, healthful children in picturesque clothes—for they do not need to be ugly to be proper—give pleasure to everybody; but "Frou-Frou" in miniature, like an imitation of a puppet, is to be frowned upon, derided, and eventually driven from position, because she is neither good for the present nor does she promise better for the future.—New York Star.

DR. LEDUC'S PERIODICAL PILLS.

These Pills are compounded from the purest drugs, from those only which are known to act upon the generative organs in females. It is a well known fact that a very large proportion of the ills to which females are liable, are the direct results of suppressed or disordered menstruation, and it is necessary therefore that safe and reliable remedy for the cure of these diseases be placed within the reach of every one. Dr. LeDuc's Pills are the oldest, most generally used, and most reliable remedy for the cure of suppressed menstruation, and other uterine diseases, and wherever they have been introduced have driven every other remedy out of the market. They were first introduced into Paris, France, by Dr. LeDuc in 1839, and have so gained the confidence of the public that they have for years been the standing remedy in every household. MAY BLOSSOM.

Miss Georgie Woodthorpe's company was greeted with a good audience on their first appearance at the Victoria last evening. The play, May Blossom, was not one best calculated to make the reputation of a company appearing here for the first time, yet each individual member sustained his or her role so creditably that it is safe to predict a much larger house on this and to-morrow evening. The play is too soft, too gushing, and requires careful study and delicate handling to make it even a partial success. Notwithstanding this fact it was presented last evening in a manner creditable to the entire company, showing it to be possessed of no small amount of dramatic ability. The author of May Blossom made a great mistake when he allowed the entire success of his play to hinge upon the burial of the bird scene. A more nonsensical scene was never embodied in a play. Yet the whole play so hinges upon this scene that it cannot be cut out. Miss Georgie Woodthorpe as May Blossom, made the best of a part, difficult at the best, winning the entire sympathy of the audience and proved herself to be a graceful and charming actress. Mr. McConnell as Steve Harland, and Mr. Bronson as Richard Ashcroft, May's two rival lovers, acted their parts well and won considerable applause. Mr. Page as uncle Bartlett, personated the austere clerical in a natural and effective manner. Mr. Cooper as Tom Bloosom and Hennessy Leroyle as Owen, two old sea dogs, were very good and set the audience in great good humor. Mr. Leroyle will be remembered as the business manager of the Wash Norton Company who were here in May last. Miss Stringham as Debora and Miss Monteford as Mattie, were good; while the acting of little Ella Whipple as little May was particularly worthy of mention. The company is a good one and deserving of patronage. This evening the picturesque drama "Among the Pines" will be presented. This drama is of the "M'liss" or "Chispa" order, and resembles both in language and style. Miss Woodthorpe will appear in the role of "Little Butterfly" a part in which she never fails to please.

A WORD FOR THE Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association in this city is fully alive to the interests of our young men, and while it does not cease its efforts to rescue the fallen, it in the main works along the line of prevention. Its gymnasium, which is largely patronized, is an excellent place for young men to work off surplus energy and acquire physical strength that will be of use in trying years to come. Lectures, entertainments and social receptions all cultivate the social qualities and meet a want natural to all. This institution is growing rapidly in favor among young men and its membership bids fair to double during the present and coming year. The work being thoroughly practical and under the management of some of our most respected citizens commends itself to the community. Any young man may become a member, regardless of creed or nationality, by the payment of a small sum. The genial secretary, Mr. J. J. Daley, will be most happy to interview any young man on the subject and explain the many advantages a youth may gain, socially, morally and financially, by joining the noble institution.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Dr. Eby spoke at the meeting in the Methodist Church last night on Missionary work, and the chairman, Rev. Mr. Percival, announced that the celebrated missionary would occupy the pulpit on Sunday morning and evening, and on Monday evening would speak on the work in Japan. The announcement was also made that to-night at the Indian Church Revs. Messrs. Tait and Jennings, Indian missionaries, and Dr. Eby would be present and speak. All who are interested in missionary work are advised to go and hear Dr. Eby on Monday night.

A LARGE SHIP COMING.

The large four-masted ship Ocean King, now lying at San Francisco, has been chartered by Mr. John Rosenfeld, one of 'Frisco's coal Kings, to load a cargo of coal at Nanaimo for Wilmington, Cala., and has been docked at the seawall in the Bay City to prepare for the voyage. It is safe to say that this ship will carry the largest cargo of coal that ever left here at one time; but it is to be hoped the Ocean King will not fare the same as the unlucky ship John Rosenfeld, by running on some reef.

PROVINCIAL APPOINTMENTS.

The Gazette of this week contains the following appointments: Edward Vine, Esq., of Pedder Bay, to be a Justice of the Peace for the Electoral District of Esquimalt. William Mathew Robson, Esq., of Mayne Island, to be a Justice of the Peace for the Electoral District of Cowichan. John Swan, Esq., to be Recorder, under the Mineral Act, 1884," and Assessor and Collector, under the Assessment Acts, for the Similkameen District, including the Rock Creek Polling Division of the Electoral District of Yale, vice A. Lindsay, Esq., resigned.

IS IT RIGHT?

It is reported that Dr. McLean, who arrived here a few days ago from the east with the intention of remaining, has determined to leave the province as the medical association will not give him leave to practice without an examination, and will not give him an examination until February. Dr. McLean comes with excellent recommendations, and we hope the next session of the legislature will repeal the obnoxious law which drives such men away from the province.—Columbian.

PROPAGATING QUAIL.

The Columbian says that last spring some of the officers of the penitentiary procured seven quail and turned them loose. A few days ago search was made and it was found that the seven had developed into a covey of 44 birds! These gentlemen have since procured 40 more birds which they will shortly turn out.

TO MARINERS.

A buoy is to be placed at the mouth of the Columbia river, near the spot where the bark W. H. Besse was wrecked a few months ago, so as to mark the place where the submerged vessel lies, as she has now sunk completely out of sight.

A GALLANT RESCUE.

When landing from a small skiff at the Port Moody wharf, Mrs. Dockrill fell into the water. Mr. T. J. Trapp, of New Westminster, son-in-law of the lady, at once plunged into the water, and with aid of several bystanders succeeded in rescuing her from what otherwise would have been a watery grave.

MY FAVORITE RECEIPT.

Some time ago the Royal Baking Powder Co., conceived the idea of collecting from its patrons, for redistribution among them, when printed in book form, their best and favorite methods for the preparations of articles of food of all descriptions. In response there were furnished a very large number of practical receipts, from which were selected the 3000 contained in the book entitled "My Favorite Receipt." The publication was intended originally for the contributors only, but the collection proved to be of such remarkable value that its publishers believing its circulation would be productive of good in affording a larger knowledge as to the practical preparation of real home cookery in a way to make it most wholesome and appetizing, have issued an edition, for general circulation, which is sold at cost of production and postage. "My Favorite Receipt" contains formulas for the preparation of almost every known dish in every conceivable way. These have been classified into departments representing Soups and Broths, Fish and Shell Fish, Vegetables, Meats, Stews, Poultry and Game, Eggs, Salads, Deserts, Breads, Cake, Condiments, Beverages, Ices, Preserves and Pickles, Preserved Meats, Canned Vegetables, etc., to which a copious index is added. Every branch of the culinary art has received ample attention. The publication is one of unusual value, from the fact that the receipts are thoroughly tested formulas of genuine home cookery. In it each contributor vouches for the utility of her receipt not only, but attests that years of experience have proved it the best way of making the article named, and signs her name and address to it as an evidence of its genuineness and her faith in its superiority.

The practical character of the receipts will especially commend them to American housekeepers. While cookery of the very finest and richest, as well as that more plain and economical, is provided for, "My Favorite Receipt" is not, like many of the cook books of the day, a collection of impracticable, untried, or foreign formulas, following which frequently results in a failure and a waste of good materials. The contributions are from every part of the country and give the best experience of the best cooks for preparing the dishes peculiar to each locality.

"My Favorite Receipt" handsomely printed and bound, is sent by the Royal Baking Powder Co., New York, at the nominal price of 50 cents, to any address, express charges paid.

REV. C. S. EBY, D. D.

This distinguished missionary from Japan who has been spending the past year in Canada is now in our midst on his way back again to his field of labor. The doctor is a very eloquent preacher and lecturer. It was his intention to have left for San Francisco to-morrow but we are pleased to be able to inform our readers that he has kindly contented to remain over for a week, so as to spend a Sunday in our city. He will occupy the pulpit of Pandora Street Methodist Church in the morning and address the missionary meeting to be held in the same church in the evening. On Monday evening the doctor will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Japan" in the same church. This lecture is one of thrilling interest, and our citizens should not miss the opportunity of hearing it. No admission fee will be charged, but a collection will be taken up to aid the lecturer in replacing a large and very valuable library which was unfortunately consumed in the great fire in Tokio.

A VIVID IMAGINATION.

A Vancouver paper says a new patent propeller of yellow metal is to be put in the Louise, which will increase the speed to fourteen knots. As the Louise is a side-wheeler, it is difficult to understand how a propeller can be placed in her without a general reconstruction, and why it should be of "yellow metal" is an unsolved problem. The statement that Capt. Irving has made arrangements for a new steamer, with a speed of 21 knots, which is to be brought around the Horn, is premature, and nothing is known about it at the office of the company in this city. Capt. Irving is, however, negotiating with a view to improve the steamboat service between Victoria and the mainland, which fact is perhaps the only foundation our contemporary has for its statements.

COMING TO VICTORIA.

The Queen of the Pacific left San Francisco this morning with the following passengers on board for this port: G D Moreland, Miss A M Brock, W Perkins, Miss E Pferdner, Mrs Maynard and daughter, J Schubert, Miss Rhodes, C P Griffin, T W Clark, Mrs Clark, Geo Clark, Gracie Clark, Lottie Clark, Ratz, A Sherwood, Miss A Jennings, Miss Bushby, C H Miller and H W Blum, Miss J C Hunter, T C Morris, C C Carr, H Wolters, Jas Wilson, Mrs Begg, G R Book, H Herne, W Cabill, J L Land, Mrs Land and J L Land.

THE BAZAAR.

There was quite a large attendance at the bazaar last night and it was continued to-day when a large portion of the articles had been disposed of. A number of choice artistic articles will be raffled to-night—including a beautiful piano cover, an ornamental chair, mantel drapery fire screen. The fortunate winners of these handsome household articles will receive something to be prized, as they are all of a class that will be an ornament to any parlor.

OBIT.

Noel G. Johnson, who recently bought an interest in the New York restaurant, died at his residence on the Esquimalt road last night of typhoid fever. He was a native of Birmingham, England; 24 years of age, and has been a resident of Victoria only a few years.

—The Calgary Tribune says that among the killed in the recent Roger's Pass accident was a young man named Code, a brother of Corporal Code, who fell in the Northwest rebellion. Engine driver Earl lies in a very critical state, without any hopes being entertained of his recovery.

—The 198th monthly drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery took place in the Academy of Music at New Orleans last Tuesday. Numerous Victoria citizens, who gamble in the lottery, are now wondering how much of a stake they have drawn.

—A cowardly trick was played upon two Celestials at Antler Creek. Giant powder and fuse were placed in the stove pipe in the cabin of the Chinamen, and when a fire was started an explosion occurred, which knocked the end out of the cabin and horribly mutilated both Chinamen. The recovery of the men is doubtful.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

Chin Ah Ying charged with stealing property valued at $314 from Ah Ching; remanded until Monday, bail being accepted in $500.

James Eckersly and John McGinnis, express wagon drivers charged with failing to carry lamps on their vehicles; costs of summons paid and charge withdrawn.

D. J. McLean, on remand, charged with building a verandah on the street; adjourned for one day.

TELEPHONE POLES.

The telephone company is substituting sixty foot poles in place of the present ones on Government and a few of the adjacent streets. The old forty foot poles are too low for the number of wires now in use, and the latter interfere with the buildings and verandahs. The new cedar poles are procured on the Island Railway, near Shawingan Lake, and are splendid specimens of native timber.
